New & Improved

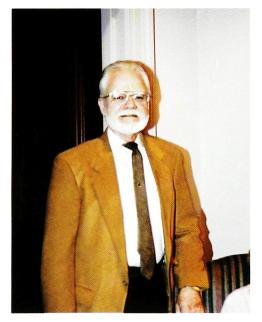

For students, college is a time of change and growth. Each fall, when they return to the campus, change is evident in new hairstyles, clothes, cars, and friends. They don't notice changes around the campus unless they're drastic, like closing a street or erecting a new building. At High Point University, changes can be seen all over, inside and out. Some have happened over the summer and throughout the past fews months, while others have evolved more slowly. For whatever reasons, changes have occurred to create the new and improved High Point University.

President's Statement

On behalf of the entire University family, faculty, staff, and student body, I congratulate the graduating class of 1994.

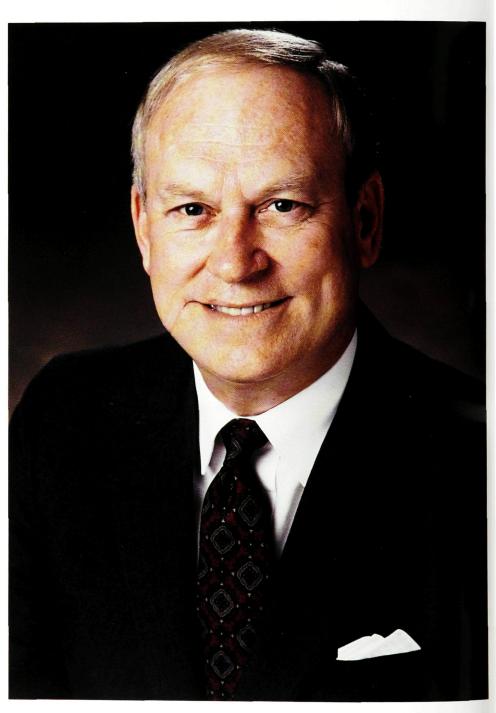

With a University degree goes a great deal of responsibility. All of us are responsible to serve our neighbors by putting at their disposal the fruits of our knowledge and the results of our studying. Our University experience enables us to master ourselves for the sake of serving better and being of more use to other human beings who might look to us for guidance.

We can be of terrific help in this topsyturvy world by setting an example of sound moral thinking and integrity. I have come to realize that any abilities I might have, physical, mental, or even artistic, unless based on a moral purpose, have no value and no plausible reason for existing. When based properly, however, I have learned that we must give more than we have received, and that a satisfactory life must be measured by its usefulness to others.

To the Class of 1994, I say go forth to apply your wisdom in service, and may God bless you along the way.

Sincerely,

Opening Convocation

A TIME TO REJOICE

May 8, 1993

On a beautiful Saturday morning, High Point University graduated 525 students. Nido Qubien, an alumni of the University and currently the chief executive of Creative Services, Inc., gave the commencement address, and the University conveyed an honorary degree upon Charles Shelton.

President Martinson and former Chairman of the Board of Trustees Roger Sales lead the procession for graduation.

A happy graduate encourages a future student.

International Student Day

nternational Student Day was held to broaden the persepectives of students toward the international community. The enlightening experience was complete with international music and speeches concerning international issues. The festivities took place in the Memorial Auditorium. In all, there were thirty-four countries that participated, including the United States. The ceremony began with the Garth Brooks song We Shall Be Free and was followed by the theme from "Cheers," Where Everybody Knows Your Name. Next, the Presentation of Colors began as March of the Priests by Mendelssohn played. Alpha Phi Omega began with the flag of the United Nations. Each flag from the countries represented followed. Cynthia Romero, president of the International Student Club, made a greeting, followed by an English folk tune performed by the High Point University Singers. Hania Qubien, secretary of the International Student Club, presented the flags to Dr. Vance Davis who accepted them on behalf of the University. Wade Anderson, president of the Student Government Association, introduced the soloist for the event, Yuko Nishimura, a native of Tokyo, Editor of the Hi-Po Clint Barkdoll introduced the speaker, Dr. Ken Nishimura. Dr. Nishimura is the president of the East-West Foundation, Inc. Dr. Nishimura's speech was entitled "Bringing Worlds Together Through Education." The recessional On Cloud Nine by Rimi Bouchard followed.

Flags from countries represented by students and faculty were presented to the University.

Representatives from the international countries stand by their flags.

LET THE GAMES BEGIN

n November 15th, a fire broke out on the second floor of North Hall. A dryer caught on fire and damaged all the contents within it. The fire was controlled before it spread, causing no serious damage or injuries. The fire was the biggest excitement on campus until the Indigo Club was opened at the end of first semester. The Office of Student Life worked diligently to make this concept become reality. The force behind this, said Dr. Morris Wray, is that "students always say they have nothing to do, which boils down to having no place to be." The club includes four pool tables, two foosball tables, electric darts, and numerous video game systems, and possibilities of having air hockey and ping pong tables in the future. The club will have state of the art cable televisions and a surround-sound stereo system. The decor of the room was planned to be lively instead of being like the conservatively decorated rooms of the campus center. This club is a welcomed addition to the University campus and is much more fun than watching the Fire Department.

The long wait for the game room was worth the wait.

he High Point University Tower Players performed the muscial "Perfectly Frank" on November 3-6, 1993. The players conveyed to the audience the talents of Frank Loesser through his works. The set and costumes added to each particular time period that was being performed. The members of the cast included Tim Austin, Chase Bowers, Denise Campbell, Kevin Cross, Byron Garrett, Alisa Hamler, Amy Hutchinson, Jenny Peterson, Steve Turner, and Steve Willis.

TAKING CARE OF OTHERS - AND OURSELVES

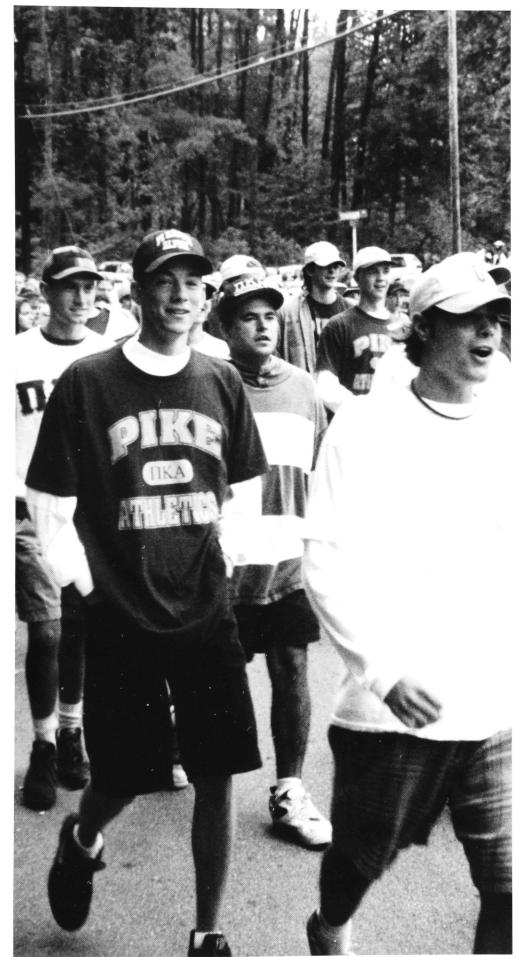

I hree major events that are held each year are the Crop Walk, Alcohol Awareness Week, and the Wellness Fair. The Crop Walk, which was held on October 10, 1993, turned out to be a booming success. More than 150 students and close to 1,000 others participated and raised more than $700 for High Point University. Ted Sykes said, "It was fun, and the money went for a good cause." Much the same could be said for the Wellness Fair. November 10th proved to be the day that hundreds of students flocked to the private dining room to witness first-hand exhibitions of health and wellbeing at the Wellness Fair. Most people thought that the activities were interesting to participate in. Alcohol Awareness Week took place October 11 - 15. It was during this time that students learned exactly what causes the hangover you get after ten beers.

Chas Singleton experiences high blood pressure from senior deadlines.

At the Wellness Fair, Elaine Potts and Mary Routh pick up information and freebies at one of the displays.

Where Are We From?

For all the students who come from out of state and other countries, having gone far away from home is like facing new frontiers. None of us knew what to expect when we got here, but we all come to appreciate the experience. Jeff Blosse from North Canton, Ohio, said, "The drive (10+ hours) is the only bad part about coming from out of state. Being away from home has been exciting because I have a lot more independence and that makes college more enjoyable because I have been experiencing a new area and lifestyle." Jeff Whitehead from Perth, Ontario, Canada, said that "being this far away from home is a wonderful experience. I really like it here and intend to pursue my career here in the States." Many of us feel the same way. High Point University is indeed our home away from home.

Visiting Talent

A TOUCH OF CULTURE

 \bigcirc

n September 22, Dr. Lynne Cheney, former chair of the National Endowment for the Humanities and graduate of the University of Wisconsin - Madison, delivered this year's Capus Waynick address. Around 300 people attended this event. Dr. Cheney talked about the concern over the growing political correctness movement and how it is undermining society and our educational system. Dr. Cheney also had breakfast followed by a question and answer session on September 23 with High Point University students. The blues, jazz, and Dixieland sounds of Best of the British could best be described as "pure nostalgia." The University was host to this sensational band December 3, 1993. Members of this most talented band have worked with such greats as Frank Sinatra, Henry Mancini, Bennie Goodman, Louis Armstrong, Bing Crosby, Nelson Riddle, Ella Fitzgerald, Barbara Streisand, and The Beatles among others. "Individually, the members of the The Best of British were founders of the Big Band era, and each of them has spent a lifetime mastering the art of jazz. The High Point University community has been privileged to hear the septuagenarians who helped to create the world of jazz. They represent the end of an era," said Dr. Morris Wray.

FUN AND GAMES AT SCHOOL

he Blizzard of Bucks was brought to the University by Student Union Producations on October 27, 1993. The game consisted of 3 separate competition rounds with 4 people in each group. The contests were like "get the gum out of the pie" eating contest, a block tower building contest, and an orange juice drinking (out of a baby bottle) contest. The single winner of each round was awarded $25. There were 3 recipients: Greg Thompson, Jacina Hayes, and Rosa Williams. Rosa was place insde a tall "telephone booth" type box where $500 in cash swirled around her. Of that $500, she was able to grab as much as she could. Rosa grabbed a total of $94. Combined with the $25 prize she already received, Rosa won a total of $119. On October 11, ARA services thought students would enjoy Sumo Wrestling. They hired East Coast Entertainment and set up in the middle of the cafeteria. "It was fun and a definite change of pace," said Steve Steffek. Activites like these made days such as November 10th more tolerable. Students gathered en masse in the old gym to preregister for spring classes, but as usual, seniority ruled. Since seniors were given first choice, many freshmen only got 1 or 2 classes they'd hoped for.

HOLIDAY SPIRIT

was two weeks before Christmas and all over HPU
The students were studying, that's all they could do.
The classes were over as first semester ended
Just one more semester 'til summertime splendid.
With exams beginning, students never reached bed
But they knew Christmas break was soon ahead.
During the tree ceremony, the lights were bright
While carolers gathered to sing "Silent Night."
Everyone enjoyed watching different Christmas shows
All one could hope for were some flurries of snow.
As the time wound down, student kept one thing in sight
To hear their family say "Merry Christmas to all, and to all good night."

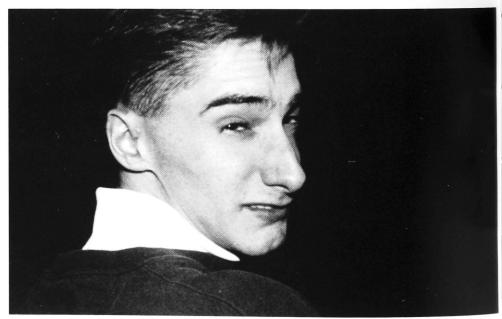

Ben Evans does the honors of lighting the tree at the tree lighting ceremony.

The annual tree lighting ceremony was attended by students and faculty.

In Memory Dr. JohnE. Ward, Jr.

Dr. Ward was an example to all of us of what a person can be if he will dedicate himself to those values that sustain and will give himself to the service of others. He valued his religious heritage and practiced his faith by living as an example to others. He was a devoted husband and father. He was supportive of the institutions in his life: his church, his country, his schools, and his profession. He loved his friends and made life better for them in many small and large ways.

Dr. Ward was a teacher. He felt that students came first. He was an example to anyone who would be a teacher. He prepared. He maintained standards. He insisted on effort and good performance and made students measure up to their potentials. He made students feel good about themselves and feel a sense of worth. He cared deeply about students and hurt when they did not do their best or develop their potentials fully. He also felt great joy and immense pride in the accomplishments of his students who went on to become physicians, lawyers, teachers, or other professionals. No less did he glory in the accomplishment of the mediocre student who against great odds had graduated from college. Perhaps it was the average student who fired him with the challenge of being a teacher and made his life what it was.

He was accessible to all students and could be found in all parts of High Point University's life. He was an integral part of the University and was certainly one of its most indentifiable assets. "Can you tell me who Dr. Ward is and where can I find him?" "Sure, he teaches biology and his office is in Haworth Hall. He is there most of the time and, no, you don't need an appointment to see him. He always has time to help out students. Oh yeah, he will be the short one with the bow tie on."

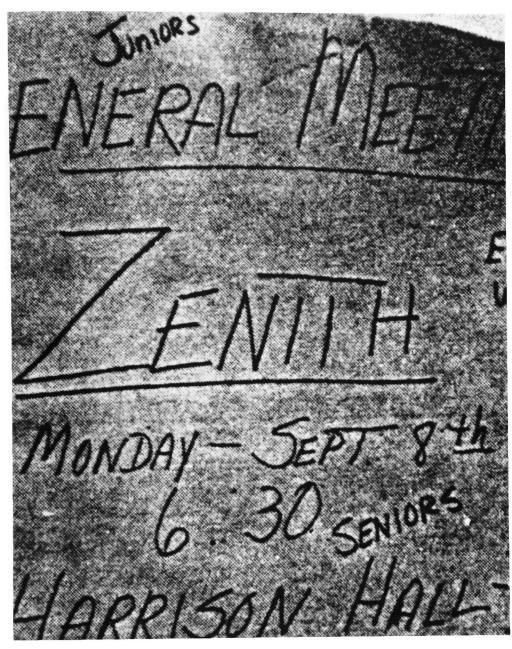

To his colleagues, John Ward was a source of inspiration, an example of industry and loyalty, and a supporter. He was a professional and was so recognized by his peers. He was a scientist and a leader. In all he did and in all he was, he was loyal: loyal to his ideals, to his family and friends, to his institutions and to students of all ages.

The Gamma Eta Chapter of

Alpha Gamma Delta

The Gamma Eta Chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta has been very busy this year. We have been active in the community, for example, participating in American Family Day In the Park. This past year we were also very active on campus. We participated in intramurals, Homecoming, Greek week, and designated driver's night. The members of Alpha Gamma Delta are a close family who will always love one another through the years.

The Delta Zeta Chapter of Delta Sigma Phi

Delta Sigma Phi is dedicated to the continuation of a trend toward success. Our fraternity was founded December 10, 1899, at the City College of New York. We received our chapter at High Point University on April 7, 1957. We have had many successful years at High Point because we have set high standards of excellence in both academics and intramural sports. The March of Dimes is our major philanthropic agency. The brotherhood of Delta Sigma Phi will continue to grow and excel.

New & Improved

As the year ends and excitement mounts toward an idllyic or adventurous summer, students have become inured to the changes on the campus around them. They have entered a comfort zone on the assumption that everything at High Point University will basically stay the same, so that when they return next fall or in a few years, they will feel right at home. In many respects, they will: they will strengthen friendships and renew acquaintances. On the other hand, the University will continue to grow and change as its alumni, faculty, staff, and administration work together for the common good of the institution. It has been the pleasure of the 1994 Zenith staff to document in photographs and copy the new and ever-improving High Point University.
